

View to the green on the par 5 fourth.

The fifth hole is a par 4 measuring 358 yards from the whites and is a real birdie opportunity. The hole dog legs ever so slightly to the left and you also have water to contend with from your tee shot, the big hitters will take this on leaving a short pitch in, those that play for the gap by the side of the water will still leave a shot in of about 150 - 170 yards to a slightly elevated green which is protected by bunkers.

The sixth hole is 418 yards par 4 and is stroke index 2, as you stand on the tee the hole starts off flat for about 250 yards and then starts to climb all the way up to the green. There are 2 fairway bunkers to catch errant drives and 3 green side bunkers to catch any wayward approach shots. This hole is a tough one and you will need at least one extra club with your approach. Take your par and be happy.

The seventh hole is the second par 5 on the course and measures in at 464 yards. You tee off from an elevated tee and as you look down the hole you can see the fairway dog legging to the right to the hidden green. The ideal tee shot is down the left hand side of the fairway to open the hole up. The green is protected by bunkers. If you get your tee shot right you can make birdie here the bigger hitters will be looking for eagles.

The eighth hole is a testing par 3 measuring in at 173 yards, you are shaded by trees as you stand on the tee and you are playing to a slightly elevated green which is protected by bunkers, don't be afraid to go one club extra here as all the main trouble is at the front of the green. 3 is a good score here.

The ninth hole is a par 4 playing 411 yards as you stand on the green you are looking uphill at a dog leg right. There are trees both sides of the fairway and the ideal drive will be down the left of the fairway to open the green up. The hole climbs steadily all the way to the green.

The tenth hole is a short but tight par 4 playing 334 yards. The tee is elevated and the view from up there is beautiful. The tee shot is tight and you can get away with playing an iron from the tee and letting it run down. The approach shot is a tricky one as the green is protected by water and bunkers. Get your tee shot right and you could be looking at birdie here.

The eleventh hole is a par 4 playing 362 yards. You stand on the tee and see trees over hanging on the left and in the distance a beautiful row of houses. Aim your tee shot for the houses and the right side of the fair way. Your approach shot is in to a hollow with a green protected by bunkers, the green slopes up hill from front to back so try to leave an uphill put here. If you do you could make 3.

The twelfth hole is a tricky little par 3 playing 142 yards. The hole drops away from the tee into a small cavern and the green is just over the cavern with a bunker protecting the front edge. The green is relatively flat and with all the trouble at the front don't be afraid to go one club extra if your short your par is gone.

The thirteenth hole a par 4 playing 378 yards. The hole is probably the flattest on the course and the green is hidden from the tee by the dog leg to the left. Your drive should be down the left hand side to leave you a shorter approach shot to the welcoming green. This hole is a real birdie opportunity.
