

The Sky Caddie SGX comes with a 3" full colour display and measures distances to the front, middle and back of the green and also to all hazards on the hole. The intelli green feature means that the hole will rotate on screen to show you the exact approach to the hole depending on your position on the course. The mark button means you can mark your position on the tee and then mark again when you reach your ball giving you the exact distance you are hitting your drives. Sky caddie also comes with an interesting feature that allows you to sync and store all your round information to Club SG this will allow you too go back and analyse your rounds including fairways hit and greens in regulation.

Sky Caddie SGX generally retails at around £299.99

Score 10/10

It really was a tough job picking a winner out of these three devices, all of them serve the purpose really well it was felt though that the Sky Caddie SGX just edged it because of the number of features it offered. With that said though I would have no hesitation in recommending the other two products to you either.
